

Do I Need A Surveyor For Event Wall Arrangement?

There has to be an essential distinction when utilizing two surveyors as opposed to one. It is well developed that the building owner Neighbour Construction Agreement has to pay the adjoining owner's property surveyor's charges, though in the case of Amir-Siddique v Kowaliw, Judge Bailey appears to use a contradictory view to that discovered in Welter v Mckeeve. Right here he found that the adjoining owner ought to pay the building owner's property surveyor's charges due to the fact that the adjoining owner had unjustly rejected the concurred property surveyor remedy. Exists ever before a reason to turn down the appointment of an agreed land surveyor if he is obliged to act impartially?
