

LVL Music Academy's violin shop carries a carefully curated collection of fine instruments that represent some of the best available in Singapore's market. The selection changes as instruments are sourced, assessed, and sold, reflecting Alan Senejani's ongoing engagement with the international market for quality handcrafted violins and cellos. For players who are ready to invest in a fine instrument, the process of choosing at LVL is fundamentally different from selecting from a fixed catalogue. Alan works with each customer to understand their playing level, their tonal preferences, the repertoire they perform, and the physical characteristics of their technique, before presenting instruments from the current collection that are most likely to be a good match. The Click for info experience of playing through several fine instruments with an expert luthier guiding the assessment is one that many players describe as transformative, even for those who ultimately decide not to purchase on that visit. The insight gained from a focused playing session with instruments of different qualities and characteristics deepens a player's understanding of what they are looking for in an instrument.
